

NO PRIZE FIGHTS FOR THIS STATE

GOVERNOR ORDERS CHARLESTON SHERIFF TO ACT.

Both Constitution and Statute Declare Such Encounters to Be Unlawful—Penalties Are Severe.

Charleston, April 6.—Warned by Sheriff Martin, after he had received positive instructions from Gov. Manning, the promoters called off the tenacious bout between Greek Brown, of Atlanta, and Tim Callahan, of Savannah, bantamweights, and other fistfights scheduled for tonight. No attempt was made to have the contest. Ticket holders were given their money back when they appeared at the arena.

Gov. Manning in a telegram yesterday ordered J. Elmore Martin, sheriff of Charleston county, to stop a prize fight scheduled for Charleston last night. The fight was to have been held under the auspices of the Flag Athletic club.

The following telegram was addressed to the Charleston sheriff: "All your attention to article 8, section 12, constitution, and section 338, code of laws 1912, on matter of prize fights. Enforce this law."

Section 338, code of laws 1912, volume 2, reads: "It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to engage in prize fighting, or to be a second in a prize fight, within the limits of this State; any person violating the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding three years, or both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. Any person or persons, either upon their responsibility or as officers or agents of any club or association, who shall aid or abet, by offer of a purse or money or other valuable inducement, or by letting or giving the use of house or grounds, or who shall in any way whatsoever effect or cause a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by a fine not exceeding $200."

Article 8, section 12, of the constitution, reads:

"All prize fighting is prohibited in this State, and the general assembly shall provide by proper laws for the prevention and punishment of the same."

Later in the day Gov. Manning received the following telegram from Sheriff Martin:

"Your telegram with reference to prize fights received. Your orders will be strictly enforced."

SOUTHERN SWEET POTATOES FOR NORTHERN MARKETS

Former South Carolinian Long Time a Resident in New Jersey Sees an Opportunity.

The following letter in regard to supplying South Carolina raised sweet potatoes to the Northern markets is sent to the Columbia State:

The letter of P. H. McGowan which appeared in your paper of March 30 relative to the importance that can be given to the sweet potato crop by Southern farmers is most timely and should be productive of much good.

My experience in the North for the last decade or more has impressed one fact on my mind, namely, that the sweet potato, handled by the Southern farmer in the proper way possesses great possibilities. Not only may the South be supplied with this important article of food, but the North and West as well.

Southern farmers have not realized that the Northern centers are large and consume vast quantities of all sorts of food. Up here the people are able to buy and do buy—they live well. There is a market for what Southern farmers should know how to grow to advantage, as well as for the output of new industries. For example, the wholesale price of sweet potatoes in this city is $2.75 a bushel. During the winter it was $1.75 a bushel.

There are no Southern potatoes on the market; those to be had are "Jersey."

This high price is not due to a market that is isolated; we are on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad, where freight facilities are excellent. The trouble is with the raisers of the crop.

If the Southern farmers would learn a lesson in co-operative farming from the Danes, for example they could become the most powerful factor in the economic life of the nation.

About two decades ago there was an agricultural crisis in Denmark. Raising grain became unprofitable. The Danish farmer became of much concern to the government and national aid was thought advisable. But the farmers got together and said, "No, we do not want that, we can take care of ourselves."

Out of this determination came Denmark's prosperity. Agriculture, to a great extent, was changed for dairying. To the resolution of self-dependence and the adaptation to new conditions is a bright page in the history of that little country.

It seems that a change is going to be imperative in the mode of Southern farming.

Co-operative farming and marketing is waiting to bring its blessings to those who will practice it. The raising of sweet potatoes not only for the home market, but for those of the North and West is one phase of this activity that will be easy to make a success. Everything is favorable to producing such a crop in the South. The season there is long; labor is not so high as farther North, and the potatoes are superior. Invent a way to get the crop to the consumer at the proper time and the problem will be solved. Hence co-operative effort.

One day last summer the writer was seated at a dinner table at the Winthrop college summer school with several teachers, among whom was a man from New Jersey. There was a fine dish of canned sweet potatoes on the table. The remark was ventured that they came from Vineland, in New Jersey. The diners, including the man from New Jersey, did not think it in the realm of possibility that potatoes would be shipped from New Jersey to South Carolina. It would be like the proverbial taking of coals to Newcastle. However, the empty cans were looked up and, indeed, the potatoes had been packed in Vineland. Of course, if none were on the market but Jersey potatoes, then they were the only ones to be had. Here is only one example of many to illustrate the same point: Why should not the South have been selling potatoes to the North instead of buying them from that section?

Again, what an opportunity for those living in the lower part of the State to create an industry in figs! There is nothing more delicious than figs canned or preserved, and our Northern neighbors could be induced to buy large quantities of them, if some one were to go about the business right.

This finer kind of farming calls for greater intelligence, industry and perseverance than does cotton raising. But that is one reason why the change should be welcomed. Anything that brings into use these qualities will prove a great blessing in more ways than the financial one.

HIGHEST COURT BACKS INSURANCE COMMISSIONER

McMASTER'S RULING IN PHOENIX CASE IS SUSTAINED

Federal Supreme Court Says That South Carolina Officer Exercised His Lawful Discretion.

The State.

The United States supreme court in a decision on Tuesday upheld the South Carolina statute providing for the deposit of either $20,000 in securities or a surety company bond in that amount, in the discretion of the insurance commissioner. F. H. McMaster, insurance commissioner, said that he was very much gratified with the decision of the court. The State of South Carolina was represented in the case by Attorney General T. H. H. Peoples and Assistant Attorney General Fred H. Dominick.

The decision by the United States supreme court was rendered in the case of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company against F. H. McMaster, insurance commissioner. The case was argued before the United States supreme court on March 12.

The case grew out of the insurance commissioner demanding that the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company, of Hartford, Conn., deposit $20,000 in securities before licensing that company to do business in this State for the year beginning April 1, 1912. The company tendered a surety company bond and refused to deposit securities. The insurance commissioner refused to issue a license. The company applied to Judge Watts for an injunction and mandamus and the case went up to the State supreme court. The State supreme court, by a decision rendered in March, 1913, upheld the insurance commissioner.

The case was taken from the State supreme court to the United States supreme court on an appeal under the 14th amendment to the constitution of the United States, the company alleging that it had been denied the equal protection of the law.

The Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company sought to show that the insurance commissioner had discriminated in favor of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company, of Newark, N. J. This the insurance commissioner denied and took the position that he was acting entirely within the statute in demanding a deposit of securities by the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company.

The decision of the United States supreme court is taken to mean that the insurance commissioner's position has been sustained.

WELCOME FOR PASTOR.

Rev. E. Pendleton Jones Begins Work at Edgefield.

The State.

Edgefield, April 5.—The Rev. E. Pendleton Jones, D. D., entered yesterday upon his work as pastor of the Edgefield Baptist church, preaching in the forenoon and again at night. After the sermon last night, a beautiful welcome service was held. Greetings were extended from the Methodist church by the Rev. J. R. Walker.

The Rev. E. C. Bailey represented the Presbyterian church and a letter extending a cordial welcome and Christian greetings was read from the Rev. R. G. Shannonhouse, the rector of the Episcopal church, who was prevented from being present on account of illness. The Rev. P. P. Blalock also gave utterance to appropriate words of welcome. Orlando Sheppard extended an affectionate welcome to the new pastor and his family from the Baptist church. The occasion was very beautiful and impressive, reflecting the harmonious and fraternal relations that exist between the several denominations in Edgefield. In his brief, but appropriate, response Dr. Jones pledged his heart and hand in promoting the harmony that exists between the churches of the community.

HOW TO CURE A CHRONIC COUGH

Told in the Following Letter by a Jackson Man Who Knows from Experience. His Word Is Good.

Jackson, Miss.—"I am a carpenter, and the gripe left me not only with a chronic cough, but I was run-down, worn out and weak. I took all kinds of cough syrups but they did me no good. I finally got so weak I was not able to do a day's work, and coughed so much I was alarmed about my condition. One evening I read about Vinol and decided to try it. Before I had taken a quarter of a bottle I felt better, and after taking two bottles my cough is entirely cured, all the bad symptoms have disappeared and I have gained new vigor and energy."

—JOHN L. DENNIS, 711 Lynch Street, Jackson, Miss.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because the active medicinal principles of cod liver oil contained in Vinol rebuilds wasting tissues and supplies strength and vigor to the nerves and muscles while the tonic iron and wine assist the red corpuscles of the blood to absorb oxygen and distribute it through the system, thus restoring health and strength to the weakened, diseased organs of the body.

If Vinol fails to help you, we return your money.
